INTRODUCTION

On May 26, 1893, the Oklahoma Historical Society was founded in Kingfisher by the Oklahoma Press Association. The Society became a territorial institution on February 1, 1898, when Governor William C. Renfrow signed a legislative act providing an appropriation of $2,000.00 for its operation. When Oklahoma became a state in 1907, the Oklahoma Historical Society automatically became a state institution.

Pursuant to an authorization made by the Board of Directors on May 6, 1920, the initial issue of The Chronicles of Oklahoma appeared in January of 1921. James Shannon Buchanan was named editor and Edward Everett Dale associate editor. Both were members of the history faculty at the University of Oklahoma. For the past several years, Muriel H. Wright has been editor. Careful selection and editing of all materials appearing in the publication have been made paramount.

From the beginning, The Chronicles of Oklahoma has appeared quarterly as the official journal of the Society. The publication has devoted itself to presenting those phases of Oklahoma and related history which contribute to historical knowledge of the people who live and have lived in the Sooner state.

As The Chronicles of Oklahoma continued to present important historical data and information, there came an ever increasing number of requests by researchers and general readers for a comprehensive index. In answer to this need, the Publications Committee, with the approval of the Board of Directors, in 1959 authorized the publication of such an index. The compiling of a comprehensive index, beginning with Volume I and extending through Volume XXXVII, was assigned to Rella Watts Looney, archivist of the Oklahoma Historical Society. To her we are indebted for the meticulously prepared materials appearing herein.
